4 DAYS DAMARALAND – SWAKOPMUND

DAY 1 Travelling past Outjo and Khorixas, we reach the bizarre landscape of Damaraland and pause at the Petrified Forest, claimed to be 240-300 millions of years old. Even if the some 60 fossilised tree trunks have broken into bits and pieces, one can still make out the growth rings. It is thought that the 'forest' hails from Angola and was swept there by a huge flood. As we continue, we may see desert elephants in the sparsely populated area.

You might be lucky and see some desert elephants on your way to Twyfelfontein. There about 2 500 rock paintings and engravings witness a time long past with values and ideals we struggle to understand today.

Swakopmund is an old seaport founded by German colonists. Here you enjoy a relaxing coastal flair with cafés and shops, a small city museum and inviting spots to rest and saunter. Swakop offers manifold adventures. Look forward to a desert excursion to meet the „Little Five“ or quad biking in the desert, a boat trip on the Atlantik Ocean or guided city tours to explore the small harbour town of former German South West Africa.

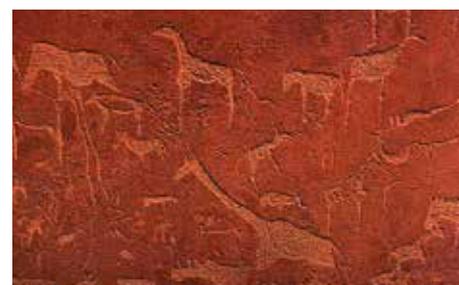

DAY 4 The morning sees us leaving either for Kambaku or Windhoek where we wander through the main street before heading for the Hosea Kutako Intern. Airport.
